Academy Football Team Finishes Season Without Defeat: One Tie

For the second-time in six official seasons of football Gould Academy has come through with an undefeated team. The 1937 eleven was more or less a surprise team as they advanced from game to game improving each week, knocking off the stronger opponents with ease after being held to a scoreless tie by a weak Fryeburg team early in the season.

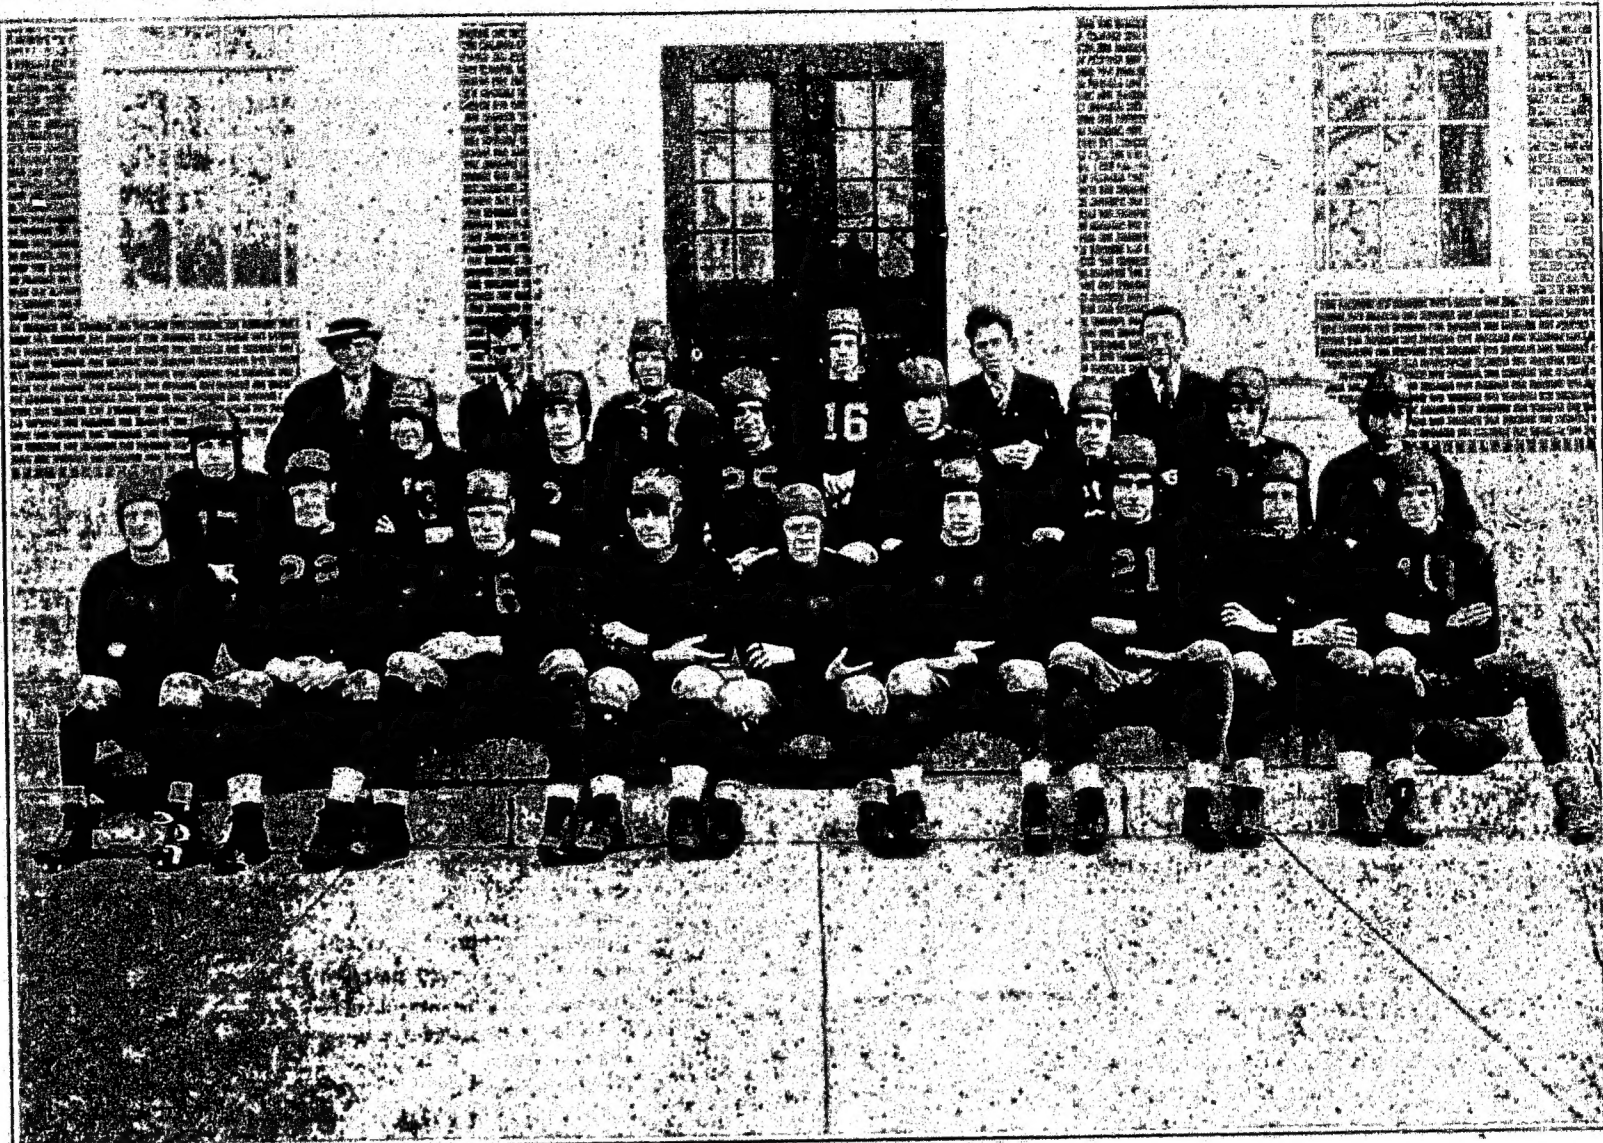

The accomplishments of this team are especially pleasing when one considers that the nucleus of the team consisted of only four veterans of the team of '36 and that three of the starting players had never played a game of football before. With only a very few reliable substitutes the team as usual conditioned themselves for the iron man stunt. The backfield consisting of Robertson, Brown, Baker and Johnson played nearly every minute of every game. The linemen were a little more fortunate in having three men who proved themselves good reserve material. These reserves are Cummings, Sidney Howe and Buddy Clough, all of whom should make first class varsity material next season.

The team of 1938 will miss the following men: Eddy Robertson, Norman Johnson, Rastus Littlehale, Ralph Hatch, Robert Keniston and Romeo Baker.

However, prospects look bright with the return of Parker Brown, Stanley Harvey, Mike Thurston, Don Holt, Dana Brooks, Sidney Howe, Buddy Clough, Ted Cummings, and a number of other good prospects.

MRS. KIMBALL FREED ON DEER CHARGE

Mrs. Jeanette Kimball of West Bethel pleaded not guilty to the charge of aiding illegal transportation of deer in a hearing before Trial Justice Rupert Aldrich at South Paris, Saturday. Testimony introduced by the state included an alleged signed confession to the effect that Mrs. Kimball had claimed a deer which she did not kill. State witnesses included Deputy Warden Walker, Chief Warden Black, Deputy Sheriff F. A. Hunt and Alice J. Brooks, town clerk of Bethel. The case was continued until Monday morning when she was found not guilty.

MAIL DELIVERY EXTENDED TO SUNDAY RIVER

Beginning on Nov. 16, Star Route No. 1201, now operating between Bethel and Rumford Point, will be extended to include residents on the Sunday River road between Swan's Corner and the home of Roland Fleet. In this way about 10 families living along the river will be accommodated besides several more who spend the summers in that locality. Five families who now receive mail from the Upton star route will change to the new arrangement so that the mail to Upton will proceed direct on the new road across the Hastings interval at North Bethel. Others to benefit by the change will be crews of 200 to 300 men who are logging in the vicinity.

Some years ago the Sunday River people had regular mail service. This was discontinued when the Ketchum post office was given up, and for several years their mail was delivered to the North Bethel post office. For the last 10 years or more their nearest post office has been at Bethel and the neighbors have co-operated in getting their mail delivered as they could.

Brown Co. Head Asks End of Delay

Herbert J. Brown, president of Brown Company, Monday told security holders that the "last serious reason for delay in approving the company's reorganization plan has now been removed" by the filing in Federal Court at Portland of the Coverdale & Colpitts report on the companies properties and earning power.

In a letter he urged bondholders and stockholders to immediately assent to the plan so as not to jeopardize the companies efforts to eliminate the trusteeship which he pointed out would prove costly to all security holders.

"The report substantiates in nearly every detail the calculations and estimates upon which the company's reorganization plan was based," he declared in the letter.--Continued on Page Five

Bethel Lawyer Married At Jay

Gerard S. Williams of Bethel and Miss Minta D. Kimball of Wilton were married Sunday at the Bean's Corner Baptist Church, Jay, with Rev. L. S. Williams, father of the bridegroom, officiating, using the double ring service. There were no attendants but little Norma Farrington acted as ring bearer.

Mr. Williams was born at Jay, the son of Leonard S. and Susan S. Williams. He was graduated from Wilton Academy and Suffolk Law School, Boston. He and his brother, Leonard F. Williams, opened law offices on Lisbon Street, Lewiston. In the Fall of 1934, he took over the law office of the late Judge Henry Hastings at Bethel. He is a member of the Baptist Church; secretary of the Bethel Chamber of Commerce; master of the Bethel Grange; scoutmaster of the Bethel Boy Scout Troop; and first assessor of Bethel Village Corporation.

Mrs. Williams was born at Mercer, the daughter of the late Harry Kimball and Mrs. A. L. Dennison of Wilton Academy; is an active grange member.

After Nov. 21, they will be at home at Vernon street, Bethel.

BROWNE AGAIN HEADS CLASS

Paul E. Browne of Bethel was elected president of the junior class at the University of Maine on class elections day Tuesday. He also served as president of his class last year.

GOULD REVUE PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

During rehearsals more or less mystery seemed to shroud the production of The Gould Revue and the reason was apparent last night when a highly entertaining show was presented by about seventy-five members of the student body of the Academy at William Bingham Gymnasium. The show consisted of ten different acts of varying nature: plays, mind-reading, magic, dancing, singing, comedy, etc.

The show was of an unusual nature, in that Miss Leavengood, director of the group, apparently was away trying to locate the costumes rented for the performance, but which had failed to arrive. Hence the show originally scheduled could not be given since the costumes were such a vital part of the effectiveness of the show. Rather than present a show not properly costumed or returning money to the assembled patrons, Herbert Foote, acting as Master of Ceremonies, asked for volunteers from the audience to come up on the stage to present some kind of entertainment. The show then on seemed--Continued on Page Six

E. C. Smith Pres. Of Farm Bureau

Oxford County Farm Bureau held its annual meeting Friday, November 5th in the Association Hall, South Paris with 350 people present. The meeting was presided over by President Robert D. Hastings of East Bethel, starting at 10:30 o'clock after half an hour had been allowed for inspection of exhibits.

The membership campaign contest between the North and South closed on Annual Meeting Day and when all members and points were totaled the Southern team captained by Chan Buzzell, Fryeburg, was declared the winner over Wilton Conant's team from the North. A total of 936 members was reported. According to a wager made between Mr. Buzzell and Mr. Conant at the start of the campaign.--Continued on Page Six

Central Maine To Extend Lines

So far as the Town is concerned the people of West Bethel Flat, Mason, and Grover Hill are assured of the benefits of electricity in their homes as the result of the action taken at the special town meeting held on Saturday afternoon.

As explained by H. Layton Jackson of Norway, superintendent of the Central Maine Power Co. in this section, it is necessary for the company to figure on a monthly income of $20 per mile of its rural lines. In this section there are not enough prospective customers to approach this amount of revenue. The company was willing to serve the territory if it could be relieved of the expense of taxes during the first ten years, and it was their proposition, as outlined in the warrant for the special meeting (see Oct. 28 Citizen), to have the amount of taxes assessed on the company's property in this extension added to the amount paid by the town for electric current used by the West Bethel School. The selectmen were authorized to execute a contract with the company for this purpose and it was voted to raise any money necessary to provide for payments during this year, which of course will be nothing.

It is understood that work will begin at once on the line and will be completed this fall as far as the home of Guy Morrill in Mason.

Town Books to Close Dec. 31.

It was voted to have the reports of the municipal officers close with Dec. 31st of each year instead of Jan. 31st as has been done since 1897. One reason advanced for this change was the requirement of the State that all town books be audited by a State auditor or one approved by the State department.

TRUCK LOSES WHEELS

A truck driven by Walter Vail came over the overhead bridge and entered the lower end of Church Street Wednesday when the dual wheels on one side rolled away from the body. One wheel hit a post and came to rest under the apple tree on the grounds of Mrs. Eugene Martin. The other made a half circle through the open door of Crockett's Garage, stopping in the room back of the office. It took some searching to find that one.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Plate, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

President Roosevelt's budget statement of October 18th has again focused attention on ever-present issues of debt and taxation. Furthermore, it has served to some extent to support the more or less commonly held belief that the President is gradually switching his fiscal policy, feels that the time for an accounting has come, and that the budget must be balanced by a major reduction in Federal spending.

From a statistical standpoint, the budget report is not encouraging. Mr. Roosevelt predicted that the deficit for the current fiscal year will be $695,000,000 — $277,000,000 more than he predicted in his April budget statement. The increase he blamed on "excessive spending by Congress in the face of Presidential warnings," as the New York Times phrased it. He estimated that Treasury collections for the 1938 fiscal year will be $1,357,000,000 greater than in the 1937 fiscal year, with income taxes accounting for approximately half of the increase. And he estimated that 1938 expenditures, excluding the important item of debt retirement (money set aside to pay off government bonds as they fall due) will be $656,000,000 under the 1937 level. Biggest cut, according to the President's statement is in the relief budget—he anticipates that in 1938 it will be $1,139,000,000 less than in 1937.

These estimates are not especially impressive in the face of subsequent developments that can make the actuality very different. But, along with his budget statement, the President took an important step which has a tremendous bearing on fiscal affairs.

He ordered two of the principal spending agencies—the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Public Works Administration—to make no more commitments. "The pronouncement," to quote the Times again, "amounted to a death sentence for these emergency agencies," of which the first was established by President Hoover and the second by President Roosevelt. Hereafter, the two bureaus will pay out money only for past commitments whose cost has not yet been met, and for operating expenses. It is to be assumed, therefore, that they will be rapidly liquidated. The President's step was a logical follow-up of the speech made by RFC Chairman Jesse Jones on October 8, when he said: "It is our purpose to discontinue general lending for the very good reason that there is enough available private capital to meet legitimate demands for all purposes."

The significance of the ultimate dissolution of the RFC and the PWA can hardly be exaggerated. Both served major, though entirely different, emergency needs. The RFC was conceived and administered as a bolter for business. It lent money to railroads, banks, insurance companies and similar institutions. The PWA was conceived and administered as a direct individual relief measure. It gave jobs to all types of workers, from day laborers to actors. By sending the two agencies into the limbo of history, the President declares, in effect, that the depression is over and the emergency period is passed.

As we enter the winter season, the interest of industry is focused on the security markets. As Dorothy Thompson says, "For the first time in our entire history, securities have suffered an uninterrupted decline for two months, with a fall of 57% in 100 major stocks. In this decline, the small stockholder, the middle class of the country, has suffered unprecedentedly. Holding his equities outright, and having confidence in the state of the nation he has held on, right down to the last minute...."

As everyone knows, the decline in security values has not been justified by the business outlook. There has been no major upturn in production and sales this fall—neither has there been a major downturn. In a number of lines, conditions have been less satisfactory than was anticipated in the summer—but by no means to the same extent as the stock market situation indicates.

According to most authorities, key trouble is three-fold: 1. Excessive taxation plus the fear of more and higher taxes; 2. Too much government restriction of security operations; 3. Foreign influences which are almost completely unfavorable.

Financial leaders, such as Charles R. Gay and Winthrop Aldrich, tend to the belief that the second reason is the most important. They feel that a relaxation of the Security Act and of SEC regulatory practices is necessary. There will unquestionably be a well-supported bloc in the next Congress which will propose modification of the Act.

So far as the future is concerned, most economic services and columnists think the market will remain more or less stationary for some time, then start up again late this year or early next year.

According to Barron's of October 31, stocks were about as cheap then as at the bottom of the 1932 bear market. They sold at 10.6 times earnings in October, as against 7.25 times earnings in 1932, and this year money was much "easier."

EXPECT LOWER FARM INCOME NEXT YEAR

For the country as a whole, net cash income available for farm family living and for savings may be lower in 1938 than in 1937, the bureau of agricultural economics and home economics said in their annual outlook report.

Decline in the demand for farm products was foreseen as the cause for lower income from farm marketings next year, while production expenses were expected to increase. Income from government payments are expected to be somewhat greater than in 1937. The net result, however, will tend to give farm people slightly lower money incomes.

No change is anticipated in the income from non-farm sources. Retail prices of automobiles, furniture, furnishings, shoes, and fuel may increase somewhat in 1938. Foods and perhaps cotton and rayon clothing are expected to be cheaper, offsetting to some extent, increases in other prices.

The report recommended "a well-balanced 1938 program of production of food and fuel for the family's use, thus conserving cash for goods and services which the farm cannot readily furnish."

The report also says that cooperative buying of consumer goods may increase somewhat along with increase in cooperative buying of farm production goods.

YOUR ACCIDENT BILL

Accidents account for about 30% of America's total motoring costs!
This is the estimate of National Safety Council statisticians. They
100-mile driving trip is 2.60, divided as follows: Gasoline, $1.50;
oil, 20 cents; tires, 19 cents; accidents, 71 cents.

The direct cost of last year's accidents, according to the same authorities, was $1,640,000,000. That is enough money to build or pave 550,000 miles of road at a cost of $3,000 a mile—or buy 1,640,000 automobiles worth $1,000 each.

It is statistically impossible to accurately determine the indirect costs of automobile accidents. But all experts agree that they are substantially greater than even the vast direct costs.

Here is a gigantic, totally unnecessary drain on the nation's economic resources. And, bad as that is, it is nothing compared to the human waste that the reckless and incompetent driver causes. In 1936, traffic accidents killed almost 38,000 human beings. They injured 1,300,000 more—of whom a large number will eventually die as a result of the accidents. Blasted careers, parentless children, ruined homes—these are but three of the consequences of a heavy foot on the throttle, a drunk at the wheel, an incompetent in control of a lethal machine weighing thousands of pounds.

We are now entering the winter season, in which the accident rate has always risen in the past. The most dangerous driving days are just ahead, with rain, ice, snow and early darkness to add to the always present hazards. Yet it is within our power to revoke precedent, and make winter a safe season. All that is needed is the cooperation of each motorist and pedestrian. Do your part!

THE LOW DOWN —from HICKORY GROVE

I had the dictionary on my knee
the other day, and was lookin' up

Santa Fe, New Mexico, and it is 332 years old and nearly as old as St. Augustine, which is 372. And I got to thinkin'
about California, which is kinda Spanish too, and if Santa Fe was out there, they would claim the dictionary is wrong and that the Florida town is an upstart.

But while I was on the S page, I glanced around and saw the words, "sapling" and also "sap," and it set me to ponderin', and she finally soaked in, that maybe I was partly readin' about my ownself, judgin' by the way I been listenin'
to speeches, and believin' stuff, etc.

And others who could maybe read the S page, they are all around, like the ones trying to beat a train to the crossing—and the night club sisters—and fellers puttin' tonic on bald heads, etc.

And in the same boat also, are folks who think the sun will come up in the west and set in the north, or some new place, just by votin' for it—if somebody says to do so.

Yours, with the low down,

The How and Why of the National Unemployment Census

A nation-wide census of all unemployed and partially unemployed persons in the United States will be taken between the dates of November 16 to 20, by act of Congress, and at the direction of President Roosevelt.

Here, in question-and-answer form, is the information you need to know about this plan.

- 1. WHAT IS PURPOSE OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS?
To get an accurate count of the unemployed and partly unemployed.
- 2. TO WHOM WILL CARDS BE SENT?
To every family in the United States.
- 3. UNDER WHOSE AUSPICES IS THE CENSUS BEING TAKEN?
Congress has decreed, and the President has directed, that it be taken.
- 4. IS THE CENSUS COMPULSORY?
No. But every unemployed or partly unemployed person is urgently requested to cooperate.
- 5. HOW WILL THE CENSUS BE CONDUCTED?
Through the facilities of the Post Office Department. Report Cards will be delivered to every family. Cards are to be returned by mail to Washington for tabulation and analysis.
- 6. WHEN WILL THE CENSUS BE TAKEN?
Cards will be delivered on November 16 and must be returned by MIDNIGHT NOVEMBER 20. They are already addressed and no postage is required.
- 7. WHO SHOULD FILL AND RETURN CARDS?
Every person who is unemployed or partly unemployed who is able to work and wants work.
- 8. WHAT AGE LIMITS APPLY?
There are no age limits except existing State regulations concerning workers' ages.
- 9. SHOULD MORE THAN ONE UNEMPLOYED PERSON IN A FAMILY RETURN A CARD?
Yes. Every unemployed member of a family should fill out and return a card, if able to work and seeking work.
- 10. WHERE MAY ADDITIONAL CARDS BE OBTAINED?
At any post office or from your postman.
- 11. WHERE CAN INFORMATION BE SECURED IN FILLING OUT CARDS?
At your post office or from your postman.
- 12. IS THIS CENSUS CONFINED TO AMERICAN CITIZENS?
No. All permanent residents of the United States are included.
- 13. IS THE INFORMATION GIVEN ON THE CARDS TO BE CONSID-ERED CONFIDENTIAL?
Yes. This information will be used for unemployment statistics only.
- 14. SHOULD EVERY QUESTION OF THE CENSUS CARD BE AN-SWERED?
Yes. To obtain the most accurate information possible, the President asks that each question be answered. Numbers 9 and 10 are particularly important. However, failure to answer some of the questions will not invalidate the card.
- 15. WHO IS AN "UNEMPLOYED" PERSON?
A person of either sex or any color who is not working and is able to work and seeking work.
- 16. WHO IS A "PARTLY UNEMPLOYED" PERSON?
A person of either sex or any color with part-time employment who is able to do more work and is looking for more work.
- 17. ARE PERSONS ON EMERGENCY WORK PROJECTS INCLUDED?
Yes. They should register as unemployed. A specific question, Number 2c, is provided on the Report Card for all persons working on a W.P.A., N.Y.A., C.C.C., or other emergency work project which is supported by public funds.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The White House
Washington

TO EVERY WORKER:
If you are unemployed or partly unemployed and are able to work and are seeking work, please fill out this report card right away and mail it before midnight, Saturday, November 20, 1937. No postage stamp is needed.

The Congress directed me to take this census. It is important to the unemployed and to everyone in this land that the census be complete, honest, and accurate. If you give me the facts, I shall try to use them for the benefit of all who need and want work and do not now have it.

H. J. BROWN CALLS FOR END OF DELAY ON REVAMP PLAN

"That this is so is not surprising," he added, "because the officers of the company naturally had a very definite knowledge of the company's affairs and its future earning power before drafting the reorganization plan."

The letter said that the sustained earning power of Brown Company, was estimated by Coverdale & Colpitts, was $3,600,000 a year after depreciation and depletion, but before fixed charges and income tax.

Mr. Brown pointed out that such earnings year in and year out would cover bond interest by more than 2½ times, adding that in view of this fact there was no longer any reason why any bondholder should not speedily assent to the proposed reorganization. He told preferred stockholders that further delay in putting the plan into operation can only work against the interests of this group who have had no return on their investment for six years.

He declared that the company's indicated sustained earning power would, on the average, be sufficient to cover preferred dividend requirements by more than three times, after increased depreciation charges, interest charges on bonds and notes and yearly debt retirement, according to the estimates contained in the report, provided the expansion at La Tuque, Quebec, and the improvements at Berlin, N. H., as proposed in the reorganization plan, are carried out.

Agricultural conservation payments under the 1937 program in Maine will be made at the maximum rates tentatively provided in the schedule announced last December. County administration expenses will be deducted from payments within the county.

LOST HORIZON

A serialization of Robert Riskin's screen version of James Hilton's novel Narrative by Albert Duffy.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

Robert Conway, British diplomat in the East, is found in a small Chinese mission after having been missing for more than a year. He has no memory of his past life but he readily agrees to return to England with Lord Gainsford. On the boat, en route to England, some strange things happen. Conway is attacked by bandits. He is rescued by a Chinese pilot. He is taken to a secret place where he meets a group of people who have been living in a secret place for many years. They have been living in a secret place for many years. They have been living in a secret place for many years.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter Three

The plane bumped over the rough, uninhabited space. As it taxied to a stop Conway turned to his brother. "All right, George, come on!" He threw open the door and started to get out. Then he stopped suddenly, peering over his brother's shoulder, whistled softly in amazement. A horde of strange, scantily attired natives—all brandishing swords and ancient muskets—had sprung up around the plane. Conway climbed back into the plane and shut the door.

The leader of the band went to the front of the plane and parleyed with the pilot. In due course the pilot handed over some gold to the native leader who turned and issued a command to his men. "Hey, look," Barnard cried, "they're loading her up with gasoline!" And indeed they were.

All that day and far into the night they flew. From the windows there was nothing to be seen but a steady procession of mountain peaks as the plane climbed higher and ever higher. In the plane Conway did everything he could to keep his fellow passengers calm. When the altimeter registered 15,000 feet and still continued to climb, Gloria who had suffered in silence most of the day pressed in silence to her ears and began to groan. "My ears are killing me!" she cried. Barnard tried to calm her.

"We've been up fourteen hours on this stretch, sister," he said. "This can't last much longer." Gloria's voice rent the air. "I can't stand it!" she screamed. "Take us down! I can't stand the pain any more!" She rushed to the pane, behind the cockpit and began to pound on the glass. Barnard followed her and put his arm around her shoulder. "Take it easy, sister," he said.

For a time nothing was heard save her stifled moans. Suddenly the motor began to sputter and cough. The plane lurched violently, there was a loud, sputtering noise and then the motor went dead.

"It's run out of petrol," Conway explained.

"Good heavens!" cried Lovett. "Can he land?" Conway tried to keep the doubt out of his voice. "He can glide her down," he said.

George, peering from the window began to shout. "There's a spot he can make!" The plane swayed perilously in a cross wind as Conway looked out over his brother's shoulder. He turned to the others—his voice electric with authority. "Come here, all of you! Crowd to the back of the plane. It may nose over!"

They all rushed to the rear of the plane as it lurched to the ground. The undercarriage struck the icy clearing, bounced several times and finally stopped. For a moment there was utter silence. Then Conway grasped his brother.

"Come on, George. We'll try the same thing again. You go around back and I'll tackle him from the front." Conway opened the door and they both plunged out into the swirling snow.

Conway clambered forward to the cockpit. He pushed open the door and climbed inside. The pilot was slumped, inert over the controls.

George joined him from the other side just as Conway, after a quick risk, stuffed the pilot's revolver into his pocket. "What's up?" George asked. "Fainted?"

Conway, impressed by the pilot's utter limpness, lifted his chin, stared into his face, pulled up his eyelid and then placed his hand over the flier's heart. He looked up at his brother soberly. "He's dead," he said. "Probably happened the moment we hit the ground." Conway picked up a map that was on the seat beside the pilot and studied it.

"See that spot?" he asked George, nodding. "That was where we stopped his morning for gasoline. He had it marked. It's right on the border of Tibet. Since then we've been in the air for fourteen hours—covered roughly two thousand miles."

"Where does that put us?" George asked. "See this spot?" Conway asked, pointing at a dot on the map. "That's where civilization stops. We're at least a thousand miles beyond that—in an unexplored country that no one has ever reached."

George stared at his brother, wide-eyed, the gravity of their situation slowly penetrating his mind. "Listen, Freshie, our chances of getting out of this are about—well, they're slim, at best. We can't afford to have three hysterical people on our hands. Keep this to yourself." He turned and entered the body of the plane.

"Everything's all right," he said cheerily. "That pilot isn't going to bother us any more. He's dead." "Well, what are we gonna do now?" Barnard asked.

"Wouldn't be much use doing anything," Conway said. "My suggestion is a good night's sleep. It's warm in here, and the storm may die down before morning."

George, who had followed his brother into the plane, suddenly grasped him by the shoulder and whistled him around. "Why don't you tell them the truth?" he demanded. "Tell them they're a million miles from civilization—not a chance of getting out of here alive, it's slow starvation, that's what it is—a slow, horrible death!"

Everyone turned to Conway, hoping that he would refute his brother's hysterical statement. But Conway looked beyond them at George who, ashamed of his outburst, slipped into a seat, avoiding his brother's accusing eyes.

All that night they remained in the plane, sleeping fitfully, and in the morning Conway and George set out through the storm to forage. A couple of hours later they returned, their arms filled with mountain grass.

"Well," George said, dumping the grass on a seat, "at least we won't starve while we have this stuff." Barnard turned away in disgust and peered out the window. Suddenly he shouted. "Hey—look!"

They all rushed to the window. Coming over the brow of a nearby hill was a caravan of native porters.

In the middle of the caravan there was a hooded chair carried by four natives. Conway approached the chair, bowed courteously to the elderly Chinese who was its occupant, and greeted him in Chinese. The Chinese smiled at Conway.

"I am from a nearby lamastery," he said in perfect English. "My name is Chang."

Conway grinned and extended his hand. "Mine's Conway," he said simply. Quickly he explained to Chang what had happened to the little group in the plane. Chang listened quietly and then ordered his servants to provide warm clothes for the refugees. "I shall be pleased to guide you to our lamastery where you will be most welcome."

Conway and his companions quickly climbed into the warm clothes and the caravan was soon on its way back up the mountain pass. It was a tortuous and weary journey. Hour after hour they climbed higher and higher into the mountain fastness, skirting dangerous ravines, maneuvering around treacherous hairpin turns.

At long last they reached the summit of the mountain, crept around a narrow ledge and with one accord they stopped, staring unbelievably at what lay before them.

It was, indeed, a strange and half incredible sight—an eye-filling horizon diffusing a softness and a warmth that was breath-taking. Below them, to the left, a group of colored pavilions clung to the mountain side. Farther on, in the hazy distance, was a valley that looked for all the world like a huge tapestry, superb and exquisite in its blending of soft colors.

Conway felt a hand rest lightly on his arm. He turned and found Chang standing beside him. "Welcome to Shangri-la," he said.

E. C. SMITH NEW PRESIDENT

OXFORD CO. FARM BUREAU

the North is to provide a free supper for all campaign workers. This will be held at the Odd Fellows Hall in South Paris on Monday evening, November 15. 140 workers have received invitations to attend with their husbands and their wives.

Edmund C. Smith of Bethel was elected President of the Farm Bureau for the coming year succeeding Robert D. Hastings of East Bethel who has been president for two years and a member of the County Executive Committee for ten years. Mr. Smith has been Vice President during the past year and Chairman of the Agricultural Conservation Committee since the Conservation Program started two years ago.

Both sides of the hall where the meeting was held were lined with exhibits representing projects in the county program of extension work. The Home Economics exhibits were put on by the various communities. Buckfield and East Bethel received prizes for the best exhibits.

Many of the orchardists enrolled to receive orchard spray service brought in exhibits of apples and the forest practices were stressed by an exhibition of pruning pine.

The principal speakers on the program were Arthur L. Deering of the College of Agriculture and director of Extension service and Miss Florence Hall of Washington, D. C., Home Demonstration Agent Leader for the North Eastern U. S. Director Deering spoke on "25 Years of Service," tracing the progress of the extension service during the quarter century since it was started. The title of Miss Hall's address was, "Impressions of Country Life in Europe," and she told of a recent automobile tour through ten European countries.

At the close of Miss Hall's address, Oayma J. Colby, Orchard Project Leader presented Miss Hall with a box of McIntosh apples and Director Deering with a case of whole kernel corn. Both gifts were local products for which Oxford County is noted.

Mrs. Iona Andrews of North Paris explained the plan by which the University of Maine recognizes and honors outstanding farmers and home makers. She gave special recognition to Mrs. Edith DeCoster of Dixfield, formerly of Buckfield, who was so honored at Farm and Home Week last year.

Dinner was served by South Paris Grange in their hall nearby. The afternoon program was opened by a period of community singing led by Rev. Wilbur I. Bull of Waterford. This was followed by a demonstration of pruning pine by Clayton Ring and Otis Evans, members of the Lake Christopher 4-H Club of Bryant Pond.

After Miss Hall's address, a group of children from Bryant Pond presented the skit, Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater. This skit was coached by Mrs. Addelyn Mann as a result of training which she received at the Recreational Institute on dramatics which was sponsored by the Farm Bureau last summer.

In the canning contest $20.00 in prizes was divided as follows: 1st, Mrs. Irwin Trask, North Paris, $5; 2nd, Mrs. Florence Hastings, East Bethel, $5; 3rd, Mrs. Alfred Andrews, North Paris, $4; 4th, Mrs. Addie Robinson, Norway, $2.

Mrs. Catherine Chase, County Foods Project Leader, announced the results of the Square Meals for Health Contest. Woodstock received the award of $5 for the community serving the greatest number of approved meals.

In the Kitchen Improvement contest which was sponsored by the County Farm Bureau Mrs. Cora Twitchell, Home Management Leader, announced that the first prize of $5 was won by Mrs. Ethel Ward of Intervale; 2nd prize of $4 went to Mrs. Cella Lake of Welchville. In a special Intra County Square Meals for Health Contest, a prize of $5 was divided equally between East Bethel and Buckfield.

Officers elected were: President—Edmund C. Smith, Vice-President—Paul Wadsworth, Hiram

Secretary-Treasurer—Avelin P. Stearns, South Paris

First Bryant Bean drew many laughs by trying to deliver a political speech, much to the embarrassment of the Master of Ceremonies.

Next came an amusing little skit, "The Correspondence School Detective," in which Lewis Porter, as the young man determined on becoming a regular detective, Murray Thurston and Nancy Philbrook, as a politician and his wife, Donald Brown, as the hard-boiled gangster, and Earle Palmer, as a G-Man, all acquitted themselves well.

Vivian Berry's performance as the "Grand-Uproar" Singer who sang "songs that linger for lovers of songs that linger," will linger with the audience as a most amusing one. Jane Chapin, in a very efficient manner, accompanied her at the piano.

One of the funniest skits of the evening was the Magic Act, which John King and Bryant Bean put on. Their endeavors to prove that the "hand is quicker than the eye" brought many laughs.

The "Gouldians," Gould's newly-formed dance band, played two numbers as an added feature of the evening. They also provided music before the curtain went up. This band is very popular and is a welcome addition on the campus.

Next, Romeo Baker and Isabel Tuell came up to the stage and drew much acclaim with their dialogue and music. The feature of their act was Romeo Baker's guitar accompaniment to the songs which they sang.

Christie Thurston surprised and amused everyone by the mind-reading which she did. Hereafter, people will probably be very careful of their thoughts when in the presence of Miss Thurston. Eddie Robertson was Christie's able assistant in this act.

Next on the program was an unusually clever tap-dance number, "School Days," in which Barbara Lyon, as the school teacher in severa dress, endeavored to instruct her pupils in Arithmetic. The pupils, June Little, Mary Clough, Mary Robertson, and Virginia Smith, were cleverly dressed in "kids' clothes."

A one-act play was then presented in which mystery was a dominant part. In this play, crook met crook and both Lydia Norton and Arlene Greenleaf played their parts in a highly creditable manner. Elaine Warren was also good in her part.

With the announcement by the over-efficient Master of Ceremonies that Miss Leavengood had at last returned from her vain search for costumes, the unique performance was concluded by three numbers sung by the 60 members of the Girls' Glee Club. The girls sang very well the ever-lively "La Cucaracha," the soft, melodic "Dream Hours," and the well-known "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," which featured a military tap dance performed cleverly by the following nattily costumed "wooden soldiers": Ina Bean, Geraldine Stanley, Elizabeth Lyon, and Helen Crouse. Both dances of the evening were under the direction of Miss Dorothy Hanscom.

The show, which was sponsored by the Girl Reserves and the Boys' "Y," was very well received by an enthusiastic audience.

FRED ANDREWS

The South Woodstock community was greatly shocked and saddened to learn of the suicide death of Fred Andrews last Tuesday night. The tragedy took place in the apartment at South Paris where Mr. and Mrs. Andrews had only recently moved from their home at South Woodstock and seemingly were so nicely settled for the winter.

Mr. Andrews was 48 years of age, the son of the late Mary and Charles Andrews. The greater part of his life was spent at South Woodstock. Surviving are his wife, Iva Sanborn Andrews, and one brother, Isaac Andrews, of Turner. At the time of his death Mr. Andrews was employed at the Ski Factory at South Paris.

Funeral services were held at the Union Church, South Woodstock, on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. The Worthy Order of Masters of which Mr. Andrews was a member was present and performed their burial service. Words of comfort were spoken by Rev. E. B. Forbes. Bearers were Ralph Bacon of West Paris, Fred Farnum, Lester Bryant and Dana Dudley of Bryant Pond. Interment was at West Paris.

Danville. Marr sought to collect $1,000 for damage to and loss of use of his car and $2,000 for medical attention and loss of services of his wife. Mrs. Marr asked $5,000 for injuries. The accident in this case occurred on the Norway-Welchville road on the 15th of last March. Hicks testified that he was driving about 20 miles an hour when his car skidded and crossed the road, crashing into the Marr car. Testimony showed that Mrs. Marr was delirious when taken from the car and had received arm, elbow, thigh and knee injuries and concussion of the brain. Cost of repairing the Marr car was $195.57. After deliberating about five hours the jury awarded a verdict in favor of Mr. and Mrs. Marr. Mr. Marr was awarded $925 and Mrs. Marr $1500. In both cases a motion was filed for a new trial. Victor Pulkinnen of Hebron, charged with assault with intent to kill and murder his wife, pleaded guilty Monday morning. He was charged with striking his wife on the head with an axe when she refused to work in the garden any longer. Her life was saved by a delicate operation at the Central Maine General Hospital.

Fred Smith pleaded nolo to the charge of transporting for immoral purposes.

When arraigned the following pleaded guilty to the charges on which they had been indicted: Carroll Cobb and Donald Kenney (two charges each), Harry L. Moore, Owen Hall, Alfred Guerette and Tony Deltos.

Retracting a plea of not guilty on advice of his attorney, Nicholas Bevilacqua of Rumford, charged with assault with intent to kill and murder, was sentenced to serve four to eight years in State prison.
